As one goes through life, it's inevitable to hear talk of souls & spirits. Even entirely irreligious people often talk about souls. It's a concept that seems almost engrained into the human psyche, regardless of any specific spiritual heritage. Despite this, few can actually articulate what a soul actually is. Most simply have a vague idea of a spiritual component to the self. This question has nagged me for several years, since I was a younger man that was still Christian. Back then it was mainly anxiety about death, leading me to question what exactly goes to heaven or hell after death. This question only continued to intrigue me as I failed to find a concrete answer even through changes in spiritual beliefs & practices.

The answer many seem to default to is that the soul is your mind, or personality. This doesn't quite make sense, as it opens up a mess of questions. For starters, how does this work related to age? Do babies who die just remain mental babies forever? Are schizophrenics & manic depressives just like that forever? Is the soul changed based on experience, as in the 'nurture' part of human life? None of it makes sense & this framework cannot stand up to the slightest bit of scrutiny.

If the soul is to be a part of one's 'self,' than it cannot be transcendant or eternal in the way most assume it to be. The self is inherently a material ('causal') phenomena. It is influenced heavily by genetics, material experiences & the various chemicals that play amongst eachother within the physical brain. There is very little true continuity with a person's self, or personality. It changes constantly. There's many cases of individuals being striken with brain tomurs & their entire personality is completely altered, to the point of loving husbands becoming violent wife-beaters. Even more striking are the instant alterations of some patients who have received severe traumatic brain injuries. Diet & drug use also have massive affects on this. The point being that all of this is purely phenomenal (material, causal), nothing spiritual or otherwise otherworldly.

A very minimal amount of introspection & spiritual studying will lead anyone to the same conclusions the Buddha & many others came to many centuries ago – the 'self' is entirely illusory. It is a construct of the mind in order to assist with the interpretation of reality. It is more a linguistic concept than anything. Everything that is held to be sacred is sure to change with age, with experience. Aesthetics, morality, overall one's identity - the "I." It's all transient, shifting like the tides in the ocean. More to the point, it's all based on material factors like biology, neural chemistry & life circumstances.

Despite this, neurology & other relevant fields have thus far failed to explain human consciousness through purely material means. The "hard problem of consciousness," barring any grandiose, unforeseen breakthroughs in these fields, it seems fairly apparent there is another element at play aside from what is explainable by material phenomena. Rather than a typical ghost in the machine type concept, it's better to view the physical brain as a sort of satellite dish, or a radio receiver.

The mind, by factors like intelligence, is able to exist as both a material & immaterial construct. This would be the spiritual element to the "self," although this shouldn't necessarily be thought of as remote controller type situation. Rather, it should be thought of as window to things 'beyond the veil.' Through this window, comes the truly creative elements of human consciousness. Things that do not arise from causality, what is erroneously called "free will" by many, although there is no more choice in what comes through that window than with material causality.

This isn't a window through which a 'true self' controls the material automaton. This is merely a window for occult forces to flow through & thereby affect the material world through their influence on people(s). As well, I equate some of these forces to what Schopenhauer & Nietzsche called the Will. I believe that one of the acausal forces that comes through this window to be fate (wyrd), which will occur regardless of any "conscious efforts" to the contrary. The cyclical nature of time, as represented in virtually all Aryan-heritage religious traditions, is also something that occurs beyond the veil, & is represented in the causal world via seasons, cycles of death & rebirth, the orbit of any given celestial object, etc.

The evolution of mankind can thus be recontextualized as continuous process of widening this channel, as well as gradually becoming aware of it so that humanity may take control of this evolution themselves in the technological age. The primordial "nuriasn" force that seeks to drag the higher down to the level of the lowest common denominator (ancient tribal customs, all Abrahamic faiths, all secularized versions of these faiths during the Enlightment & onwards) can be conceptualized as a sabotaging force. An ideology that prioritizes mediocre or outright worthless life over the devine mission of all living beings – evolution & overcoming.

The prioritization of this mission, revealed to us by observing the Iron Laws of Nature, is an absolute necessity. It is only by survival of the fittest, without charity to those left behind, that this mission can be realized. It is in the tradition of Prometheus granting mankind fire & Wotan teaching us the secrets of the runes that we inherit this divine mission. It is in the tradition of humanity eating from the Tree of Knowledge, rather than rot away to entropy.

The National Socialist worldview is the pseudo-secular, political manifestation of this mission. Formed after prophets like Nietzsche broke the silence & revolted against the world order of entropy, Christianity & its secularized political strains. The old aristocracies by this time had lost the momentum & turned out to be little better than the vulgar masses, their ultimate downfall during the First World War was inevitable. Replacement was necessary. Unfortunately the forces of entropy were too powerful during this first revolt against the world order, which snuffed out the gentlemanly manner of pursuing this mission but left us with a symbol stronger than any cross. It left us with a man who occupied the Lucifer position in secularized Abrahamism.

Much like Nietzsche, who was history's greatest iconoclast, we too must be iconoclasts to the present world order. We are antinomian insurgents against the System, spiritually & politically. In due time, militarily. The gentlemanly way of working things out failed, so we must become Kalki. We must end the dark age by kicking out it's supports & burning it to ash. Helter Skelter, White revolution, names are irrelevant. It's ultimately the same. The world on fire, a New World Order will rise from the ashes of the kike system.

Much like how Adolf Hitler became the secular Lucifer to the forces of entropy, we must be as well in his name. Constantly undermine the System – financially, philosophically, militarily, memetically, all of it. Force it to justify itself in the minds of it's sheep. Until it buckles under the weight of it's lies & we achieve Total System Collapse. What will be built after the fact will be beautiful, I'm sure, but it's gonna be formed from absolute chaos just as the Cosmos was aeons ago.

Be always an adversary to the System & spread discord always. Be the reason some normie gets a swastika tattoo & joins a militia. Call people slurs to their face & keep a concealed carry if they get too uppity. Make black propaganda to fearmonger over our oppisition. Encourage some retard that shouldn't reproduce to become a homeless drug addict to drain System resources. I would continue but I don't the FBI to harass my family again. Be always an agent of ACCELERATION, at any cost.

We've had 80 years of peace, let's give hate a chance.

Hail Victory.

The issue comes with attempting to "explain" a soul through purely rational means. This is a fool's errand, like attempting to reduce love to a mere combination of chemicals released for optimal breeding.
"Souls" are not esoteric, but they are mysterious. They're a simple concept, but they cannot be understood through materialist or purely logical means.
